

Douglas W. Collins

Douglas W. Collins is an internationally respected business strategist who initiated Brand Development, Capital Acquisition, End Game and Go Public Scenarios, and Strategic Business Plans. He is an accomplished speaker and trainer having authored many presentations in sales training, global marketing, arts and entertainment, and broadcast media. He is co-author of the book honoring the legacy of western artist Kenneth M. Freeman – 'Artist at Work.' Collins also wrote the album liner notes for the best-selling CD 'Shipped' by jazz pianist John Shipley, a founding member of the jazz fusion group Hiroshima.

Collins presently serves as the Director of Business Development of HEAMGEN, Inc. which is an exciting MEDICAL BREAKTHROUGH Company for building resiliency into the global blood supply chain by applying patented technology to manufacture lifesaving mature, human Type O-Negative red blood cells from stem cells.

Collins was the founder and managing member for the Scottsdale, AZ based HD Broadcast AZ which provided live shot services to global networks. His company was profiled in USA Today's Money section as the most advanced broadcast studio in the USA. He developed virtual set designs which added high production value to online webinars, streaming training sessions and commercials for Fortune 500 companies.

Collins is also the Executive Producer for the upcoming action thriller movie Cyberkill. The plot deals with artificial intelligence, cyber stalking and cyberterrorism. The project is currently in development.

Today, Douglas lives northwest of Atlanta, GA and in Coronado, Panama with Dianemarie, his wife of 45 years, along with their two pugs. He enjoys playing the guitar, movies and travel.